Town and Parish Councils: document retention schedule and guidance

This retention schedule sets out the main types of town and parish council records and describes how long they should be retained and what should happen to them thereafter. It includes those which should be preserved and deposited with the Archives and Cornish Studies Service at Kresen Kernow, and those which should be destroyed. It supersedes the Cornwall Association of Local Councils (CALC) guidance from 2022 (version 5). Further general guidance can be found on page 5.

Documents and information transferred to Kresen Kernow will remain available to the council and for public inspection. This schedule is produced as a guide only; retention locally will need to be assessed on a case-by-case basis.

Retention periods

- These start from the date of the last entry in the record and documents should be retained for the number of years listed as a minimum.
- The retention time for most documents is standardised to at least four years, but assessment will need to be done on a case-by-case basis, with finance documents retained for at least seven years to reflect legal and audit requirements.

Actions

- Preserve - these records should be transferred to Kresen Kernow for permanent preservation. They will need weeding first to remove duplicate copies or insignificant documents.
- Review/sample - records marked for review/sample should be reviewed and weeded prior to transfer. If you are unsure about sampling, please ask for advice from the ACSS.
- Destroy - records can be retained locally but would not be considered for permanent preservation as part of the collection held at Kresen Kernow. Where no minimum retention period is given, things may be destroyed when no longer required for administrative purposes. Documents should be treated as confidential waste and shredded.
- Only one copy of any document should be transferred unless any copies are significantly different.
- Clerks are often best placed to identify documents that relate to important or controversial local issues and developments.

Minutes

- Minutes should be signed if possible and in date (or reverse date) order.
- Agendas should not be kept unless they contain significant information not in the minutes or the minutes do not exist.
- Reports/significant correspondence should be kept. If there are detailed minutes, large amounts of correspondence may not need to be kept.
- Only keep annual accounts, unless these do not survive, in which case keep interim accounts.
- Make sure you know where all the minutes are – they are important records.

Digital and audio-visual records

- If any of the material on the schedule is in a digital format (other than Word, Excel, pdf, mp3 or mp4), please speak to the team at Kresen Kernow about their preservation.
- Any video or sound recordings should be weeded, sampled and digitised before transfer.

Kresen Kernow is unable to take collections of press cuttings, objects or memorabilia.

Creating new documents for permanent retention

As many records kept by parish and town clerks and councils will be transferred to Kresen Kernow for permanent preservation, it would be useful if they could be created using good quality archival materials where possible, as well as being kept in sound conditions. A few basic guidelines about materials are given below.

Please ensure that all staples, clips, plastic wallets and folders are removed wherever possible before transferring documents to Kresen Kernow.

Paper

Many modern papers are made from wood pulp; they are acidic by nature and become brittle and darken when exposed to air pollution. Archival quality paper is available and, if possible, this should be used for key records which will be preserved permanently, such as council minutes.

Inks

Use good quality ink with a high carbon content. These may be described as permanent, pigment, document, Indian, calligraphers or archival. Art suppliers may stock some of these inks.

Holding sheets together

Brass or plastic paper clips are better than staples which are prone to rusting. Do not use Sellotape or glues, most of which are acidic and will cause problems in the future. Rubber bands perish and shrink causing damage to papers.

File covers

File covers can cause a lot of damage because they are often made from acidic boards, chemically unstable plastics and metals which can rust. If possible, use archival covers which consist of acid free board, inert plastics and avoid metals.

Plastic enclosures and lamination

Avoid storing documents in plastic folders, covers and wallets. If essential, only inert plastics such as polyester and polypropylene should be used. Never laminate documents.

Boxes

Should be acid free where possible but a good strong box with a lid will protect documents from dust and physical damage.

Electronic, digital, computer and audio-visual records

Most common digital records are safe to transfer these days, such as Word documents, pdfs and digital images (e.g. jpegs). If you have records in unusual file formats, or that have been created with older hardware or software, please seek advice from the ACSS on which formats are acceptable. All video or sound recordings should be weeded, sampled and digitised before transfer.

Storage and care of records

- Keep records in a cool, clean and dry environment and out of direct sunlight and non-UV-filtered artificial light as much as possible.
- Keep records away from outside walls which may be damp, windows and pipes that might leak, and off the floor where flood water might reach them.
- Keep records away from sources of heat, such as radiators, which will dry them out. Good ventilation is also important.
- Records held in unsuitable conditions can be quickly and badly damaged by mould and pest infestations that thrive in warm, damp conditions and by accelerated chemical reactions.

ACSS Town and Parish Council records: document retention schedule 2025

- Check your storage areas regularly to make sure they are well maintained and regularly cleaned.
- Use acid free wrapping paper and folders, if possible, but not brown paper, newspaper or other poor quality wrappings. Although they are practical in the short term, avoid using plastic wallets for long term storage.
- Avoid using paper clips, bulldog clips, sticky tape, adhesive labels, 'Blu-Tak' or rubber bands as they will rust or cause staining. Tie bundles and books with unbleached cotton tape instead.
- Protect photographs with inert polyester sleeves or other archival photograph envelopes or paper.
- Watch out for silverfish and other paper, parchment and leather-eating insects and beware of rodents.
